

FIRE CHIEFS MEET AT EDGELY; HEAR OF NEW LEGISLATION

Bucks Co. Group Listens To Address by President of "Box 1776," Phila.

TO RECEIVE MONEYS

New Law Will Give Firemen Funds Received Under Levy

EDGELY, July 20—Edgely Fire Co. served as host on Monday evening to those affiliated with Bucks County Fire Chiefs Association. The group was assembled in Edgely Fire Company station, and presiding was Robert O'Neill, Cornwells Heights, president of the county group.

Albert H. Reddies, who is the president of Box 1776, Philadelphia, was the speaker. He spoke of superiority of equipment in the volunteer fire companies, especially as compared to that of large city companies. He stated that the fire loss has been cut down during the past several years due to quick action and fine equipment of the volunteers.

The speaker urged that fire companies have two-way radio installed on all fire apparatus. "Such a step would save time and lives," he commented. He informed that the Federal Radio Commission has assigned a number of channels to fire departments.

In speaking of need for an expanded program of fire prevention he informed that "industrial and mercantile inspections are carried out, but dwelling inspections are neglected."

Forty men were present to participate in a general discussion of various fires in Bucks County. Announcement was made to the group of the passage recently of a law whereby fire tax funds received in any township will be distributed equally among fire companies in the township.

Outlines Problems Met In Veterans' Training

ANDALUSIA, July 20—Bensalem Rotary Club was given an outline of the problems and attempts at correction which are met in veterans training, when members met in King hall last evening. John Virdin, instructor in advertising and selling at Bok Vocational School, Philadelphia, was the speaker.

One problem for which the cure is self-evident was the fact that the veteran may start instruction at any time during the term. Another is the adverse picture painted by organizations and publications which pre-supposes every veteran as having a "condition." This has a tendency to create a certain feeling of helplessness and a desire to dodge anything which might aggravate the "condition" in many instances. Classified as aggravating in the veteran's mind seems to be, namely, the process of thinking or assuming responsibility. This problem is a tough one according to Mr. Virdin, and necessitates a psychological approach. Teach self-discipline is essential, he pointed out.

A great help in training the veteran can be had by every business man able to give apprentice training or part-time employment, it was emphasized.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Democratic victory over totalitarian dictatorship is inevitable without war because of the greater appeal of our faith, President Truman declared yesterday in addressing the Shriners' convention. "The world is tired of political fanaticism," he said. "It is weary of lies, propaganda and hysteria created by dictators. It is disgusted by the practice of torture and political assassination. It is sick of the kind of political allegiance which is inspired solely by fear. Men want to live together in peace and 'feel themselves united in brotherly love.' The United States generously helps others, the President said, because 'we think of the people of other countries as human beings, not as pawns in the game of power politics.'"

On the question of aid to others, Director Dodds of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization said a world survey had shown him that President Truman's "point four" could bring great development to backward areas with "just a little money."

Senate Republicans opposed to the North Atlantic treaty were reported rallying to a resolution Senator Wherry plans to introduce disavowing any obligation to give arms aid to other signatories. Henry L. Stimson appealed to the Republicans for ratification not "befogged by reservations seeming to proceed from fear." Russia, in a note, accused Italy of having broken her treaty by joining the North Atlantic pact.

A National Planning Association committee urged repeal of wartime excess profits taxes and a "modest increase" in income tax exemptions to spur buying and production.

The Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy will discuss with State Department, military and atomic energy officials today Britain's desire for the "know how" on atomic bomb production. A majority of the committee was reported opposed to making the information available. Much of this data is known to British scientists, it was said.

Striking British dockers were ordered back to work today under penalty of losing wage and other benefits.

The Vatican's decree excommunicating willing Communists has seriously weakened that party in Soviet areas of Germany. The Communists made a surprise plea for free elections in Berlin. United States and British officials were considering reducing occupation costs to the Germans.

Greece charged that the Cominform, to offset Yugoslavia's defection, had increased aid from Albania and Bulgaria to the Greek guerrillas.

Recovers Her Pocketbook After It Went Down Sewer

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—Peggy Lunny thinks the Doylestown sewer system is about as efficient as anything there is in her home city of Newark, N. J.

The pocketbook, containing a sizeable sum of money, and valuable papers, was swept down a storm sewer underground.

Miss Lunny appealed to the sewer department, and was guided to a catch basin four blocks away. By the time she got there, the pocketbook had caught on a broken tree limb, where the lucky Miss recovered it, with contents intact, although a bit damp.

RESCUE UNITS RESPOND TO CALL WHEN TWO BOYS ARE BELIEVED DROWNED IN DELAWARE NEAR NEW HOPE; BOTH LATER FOUND TO BE SAFE AND SOUND

Rescue units of Lower Bucks County were called to Lumberville, shortly before 10 o'clock last night when their services were requested to aid in finding two youths reported drowned in the Delaware river. Later the boys turned up safe and sound. The boys were identified as W. H. McClure, Jr., 14; and Henry Coe, 14.

The original alarm, which sent the rescue units into action, came when the two boys failed to return home after a boating trip on the river.

The call as received in Bristol was to the effect that two boys in a canoe had hit the rapids near New Hope. Their canoe was disabled and one boy had started to swim ashore while the other was clinging to the craft.

According to state police at Doylestown, the two left their homes shortly after 7 p. m., saying that they were going boating and would return in a short time. When they failed to return after two hours, the father of one of the boys, notified police.

Police called several rescue units who sent out the alarm for all squads. Units from here as well as Trenton, Pennington, Trevose and Washington Crossing, responded.

The dramatic occurrence came to an abrupt end when one of the youths, picked up walking along the river toward Lumberville, told police that their outboard motor had run out of fuel, leaving them stranded several miles below the town, near Lumberville. The other boy had stayed behind to watch the craft.

Several rescue units on their way to Lumberville were flagged down by New Jersey and Pennsylvania police and told of the happy ending to the drowning scare.

SHOWDOWN HERE

Members of the United States Senate now have a chance to show that they meant it when they called for economy in government. Inasmuch as a majority has spoken informally to that effect, all that is now necessary to obtain the desired result is for the Senators to vote as they talk.

The showdown is here on the appropriation bills, and it would be a pleasant surprise if fears that expenses will not be reduced proved to be unduly cynical. If it were a case of directing the President to cut appropriations—which has been suggested as a possible course—most Senators would vote for the resolution.

But when it is a matter of going individually on record in support of smaller funds for specific projects or departments, members of the Senate become exceedingly wary. They refuse to take the responsibility of offending some of their constituents.

Still and all, the need for economy exists in greater degree today than at any time during the past 10 years. The President's own mid-year message has pointed up this fact. But the policy which Mr. Truman advocates is one of deficit financing. Quite as discouraging as this proposal is his recommendation for expensive adventures in new social and economic fields.

When prudence dictates savings, the President suggests living still further beyond the government's means.

BEEF ABOUT BEEF

Uruguay has a beef against the American Army. The beef, in fact, was raised on the hoof on the rolling grassy plains of Uruguay. Sensitive Uruguayans are convinced that the Army undertook to buy their beef and then went back on its word and made the purchase from their top-heavy and none too friendly neighbor, Argentina.

It was all a misunderstanding, apparently. The Army opened bids last month on an order for $5,000,000 worth of beef for its overseas troops. A Uruguayan firm was the low bidder. But the bid was on a lower quality of beef than the Army wanted, and the Army called for new bids on high quality beef. This time an Argentine firm was low and it got the contract.

There seems to have been some bungling in a situation which resulted in cancellation of one set of bids and calling for a second set after the results of the first had been announced. Small Latin countries like Uruguay are likely to be touchy toward slights from North Americans. And the Army seems to have done little to smooth matters over.

It is understandable that Army officers should feel that public relations are unimportant. An army has ways of influencing people without bothering to make friends. But guns are at best a poor substitute for good will, and it should be possible to drive this point home, even through the high brass.

at the baseball game heard the useless argument among players and protesting roars from some spectators as the result of a decision made by the umpire.

"It reminds me," said Hajala, "of the case of Utell-em, who, in ancient Arabia, acted as Kadi, or magistrate, among individuals in various arguments. After listening to both sides, he would render a decision which, though fair, always brought protest from the contestants not favored by the judgment. Then would the Kadi say, 'Behold, though I have weighed both arguments wisely, I may have erred, since I am not Allah. Yet were there no judges like myself, your disagreement might never find solution and presently your respective tribes might be at each other's throats. You must agree that the opinion of a fair judge is to be preferred.'"

"Some day," continued Hajala, "men may progress to the point where they may agree on most things of themselves. Meanwhile we should be glad to have courts—or umpires—so that the game may go on."

DEFINITIONS IN RHYME

NASCENT—a word from scarce use not too worn
Means coming into existence, or being born.

Since the word means beauty, there is nothing rude
In telling your girl she has PULCHRITUDE.

It is hoped that you will not need this advice; but if you are bitten by a venomous snake, here is the course to follow:

Send for a physician at once. Apply tourniquet immediately about 2 inches above the bite. Loosen at intervals to prevent gangrene. Make cross-cut incisions with sharp knife or razor blade, at the bite and on the edges of the swelling. Apply suction at each cross-cut incision for 15 minutes of every hour. Inject antivenin as soon as possible around and above the bite. Then release the tourniquet and continue suction with empty antivenin syringe until symptoms subside.

An old-timer, noting the same Fourth of July doll parade and distribution of ice-cream cones, remarked, "Those poor kids never will know the fun we had—and the casualties—thank Heaven."

Now women everywhere, at man's beck,
Leave homes with modern aids and comforts blest
To go to summer shacks of rustic type.

At inconveniences they do not grieve
The while they arduous through rugged added chores
So hubby may enjoy "the great outdoors."
Ah, women—once again your patient wins
My accolade to you as heroines!

Don't continue to drive when fatigued or drowsy. Stop and rest—or that trip never may be completed.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.
(Famous make-up advisor to the screen stars now writing for INS).

HOLLYWOOD. — (INS) — If, for some mysterious reason, you wish to go out and purchase a truly inferior perfume, you would find this procedure much more difficult today than you would have some 25 or 30 years ago. Most of the fragrances offered today are quality ones. Some are better than others, but still, there are few really inferior ones being offered.

This is largely because the glamour-seeking woman of today is much wiser in her purchasing of all grooming materials, including perfume, than she generally was some decades ago. She is aware, among other things, that a too-cheap-in-price perfume is in nearly every instance actually not an economical purchase. The fragrance of such a perfume does not offer a sound return for the financial investment, either in the quality of the fragrance supplied, or the lasting power of this fragrance.

The result of all this is that women now don't have to be quite so on the alert as they used to against the possibility of investing unwisely in an unworthy scent. Their own discernment has, down through the years, largely taken care of this problem.

However, it can still be noted that there even now remain at least a few flaws in the fragrance scene. A great many women are not at all appreciative of the fact that one fragrance will not serve as well for a wide variety of times, places, and costumes as an assortment of perfumes can, with each of these de-

Eye Make-Up Is Flattering

Courtesy Kurlen

To put the final touch on your eye make-up, you might like to try a colorless lash cream. Apply it with a small brush or with your fingers.

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE way for a girl to change herself from the quiet little mouse type into a more vivid personality is to touch her eyelids with flattering pigment. This form of artifice will do something to her spirits, give her self confidence. The miracle has happened to others. She will have to be deft and clever, find out the ways and means but, once all this is accomplished, she will feel that she has flair.

No woman is afraid to lay on the counterfeit blush or ply the lipstick, no matter how blazing the colors may be, but the average woman is scared stiff of eye shadows. She thinks they may be too theatrical or she doesn't really need them or they take too much time to apply. If she will go to a beauty shop, have a fifteen minute session with a facial operator, she may be delighted with the reflection in the mirror.

Difficult to Manage

In yore years, shadows were difficult to manage. They came in cake form, wouldn't friction into the flesh evenly, often fell from the lids in a light powder form. Not so these days. Cosmetic chemists have produced items that sweep on easily and stay put. It is like applying a light cream. The only way you can go wrong is to use too much or cover too large an area.

If lid coloring is used discreetly it will bring out the color of the iris, will help give bespectacled eyes a needed touch of glamour. Start at the line of the eyelashes and blend in delicately over the fullness of the lid. There should be but the faintest film. It should not extend beyond the far end of the eyebrow, must grow paler as it ascends.

Blue is the favorite for blonds and brunettes, though one can have bronze, pale green, grey-blue, gray brown or even a delicate mauve.

The skin should be conditioned for shadows by the use of a light cream. Then the eyes will look dewy.

To put the final touch on your eye make-up, use a colorless lash cream. Apply it with a small brush or with the fingers.

signed to complement one specific feminine scene. If you haven't already done so, look into the possibilities offered by this glamour device, with it being one which fits together sound in its principles of appeal.

If the acquiring of several types of perfume would impose an economic strain, experiment with the use of quality perfume-colognes. While not as long lasting with their fragrance effects as concentrated perfumes are, they can be equal to the more expensive scents in their basic quality.

CHOOSE VACATION CLOTHES WHICH ARE NOT EASILY MUSSED

By Miss Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Vacation clothes should be comfortable and easy to care for. Only the vacationist knows how many clothes she should take or for what occasions. But whether she lounges or whether she travels, well-chosen clothes will add to her vacation spirit.

A five-piece suit in a dark cool material will provide several changes. A skirt, jacket, and blouse for travel, the shorts and sleeveless shirt for play. Another change about costume consists of a sun-back dress with a pocket for street or travel and shorts and bra for sun bathing and sports. For cooler climates the skirt, jacket, shirt, blouse, and slacks can be worn change-about with a bright sweater.

Dresses of silk or rayon sheer or nylon take up little room in a suitcase and are ready for dress up occasions. Nylon is being made up into a greater variety of garments than ever before, not only hose, underwear, and sleeping garments, but blouses, dresses, gloves. These simplify the laundering problems.

Feminine travelers should eliminate heavy large cosmetic containers. Cosmetics in small packages and plastic containers for damp wash cloths and for extra bobby and hair pins are suggested.

Careful packing means the vacationist can find everything easily. Pack heavy articles like toilet cases, traveling iron, shoes in the bottom of the suitcase. In a suitcase which is large enough to hold extra dresses or a suit, put these garments next, and then put the sleeping garments on top. If the case is not unpacked each night it is easy to reach the toilet case and the sleeping garments. The vacationist who wants to travel light won't carry extra hats and she'll plan to make one set of accessories do for all of her costumes.

Here and There Bucks County Towns

Officer Russell Ulmer was driving the police car, and the other was operated by Mrs. Norman Ruth, of Perkaskie, who had her vehicle parked diagonally at the east curb of Seventh street.

A large produce truck stopped in the north-bound lane of traffic on Seventh street to unload merchandise, and Mrs. Ruth's view on South Seventh street was obstructed.

Employing portable scales, the latest development in curbing overloaded trucks from traveling the highways, troopers of the Bethlehem and Quakertown barracks of the State Police halted 23 drivers on Route 209 and Route 22, the latter known as the William Penn Highway, within 48 hours.

Seventeen drivers were apprehended in the vicinity of Quakertown. Troopers Joseph Ritsick, Bethlehem, who heads the truck checking detail, and Akiba Leiberthal and Stephen Davidovick, Quakertown, were on duty.

The only Bucks county driver halted was George E. Armstrong, Perkaskie. The others were from various parts of the State and Ohio and Michigan.

With Patricia McClennen showing her trick horse and David Barndt offering free rides in his pony cart, the fourth annual pet show ended in a high note on the playground at Perkaskie the past week.

More than 200 children and half as many pets combined to make the show a real success. Miss McClennen trained the pony herself. The show was under the supervision of Mrs. James Hackett, Chet Dawson and Alex Christ, and was held in conjunction with the supervised play program of the school board.

From the time the dogs started the parade until the cats, rabbits, tadpoles, turtles, chickens and guinea pigs were judged, everyone had a glorious time.

To Use Tag Funds For A Parking Lot

Tag day will be culminated by a big junior cadet drum and bugle corps competition, with Soby Post Cadets serving as hosts.

The Langhorne Association was formed last November, it being a civic organization. According to members "The association is an organization working in conjunction with other groups in recognition and solution of civic problems in the community." According to officials, one of the first things the unit did was to take action to have the borough Christmas lights resurrected and hung about the streets. "They were in the basement of Langhorne bank for about nine years," said a spokesman.

Seventy men are said to be affiliated with the Langhorne Association, with meetings held on the first Wednesday of each month in Cadet Hall.

Bucks One of 10 Leading Counties, Egg Production

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—Bucks County is one of the leading 10 counties in the United States in poultry and egg production, according to Ralston Lanson, poultry professor at the National Agricultural College. Mr. Lanson spoke to members of Bucks Co. Division of the P. S. P. Federation, in Segal hall.

According to the guest: "Poultry and egg production make up a $200 million dollar industry in Pennsylvania."

Mrs. Alice Peppers Dominy, Quakertown, served as chairman.

Frank H. Ellis, 3rd, executive secretary of the Penna. State Poultry Federation, said: "A producer organization that will make its weight felt locally, state-wide and nationally must be developed this year in order to be effective during the coming year."

John Rosenberger, Quakertown, speaking from the hatchery point of view, said: "When the poultry farmer can produce more and better eggs and chickens at less cost he is going to be a better customer for more chicks, feed, equipment and more of everything."

E. J. Lawless, Jr., of the State Bureau of Markets, Harrisburg, outlined some of his problems in trying to supervise the poultry and egg grading and inspection work in the state. "Many government agencies and industrial organizations are educating the consuming public to expect and demand AA poultry and eggs. Many farmers and poultrymen are attempting to produce them."

A two weeks' membership drive will be climaxed by another meeting at the N. A. C. on July 29, when the program will be divided among two subjects, "Poultry Diseases" and "Price Support Programs."

Women Study Development Of Memorial Planting

WASHINGTON CROSSING, July 20—Among the recent guests of the Bowman's Hill Wild Flower Preserve in Washington Crossing Park were Mrs. Charles Platt of Chestnut Hill; Mrs. Edward M. Chestnut of "Hayfield," Ambler; and Mrs. William R. Mercer of Doylestown.

As representatives of the Garden Club of America, a charter club of the Garden Club of America, they studied the further development of their memorial planting, which was one of the earliest contributions made to the wild flower preserve.

Meeting with the group were members of the preserve committee, a representative of the park commission, and the park botanist and naturalist.

Sixteen varieties of the Ilex opaca (American Holly tree) were recently donated to the Wild Flower Preserve in Washington Crossing Park. These unusual specimen seedlings were the gift of Miss Elizabeth C. White of Whitesboro, N. J., internationally known for her work in perfecting the "true-blue" blueberry, the propagation of the rare Franklinia tree, and also the box huckleberry.

The plants which were received by the park bear such names as Betsy, Osa, St. Mary, Sallie, Sarah, Della, and of the "gentlemen" hollies—John Higgins, Charles, Isiah, and "Slim Jim."

At least four of these distinguished arrivals will be planted on the Bluebell Trail, which recently was sponsored by the Doylestown Nature Club.

Miss White has long been an ardent supporter of the purposes and program of the Bowman's Hill Wild Flower Preserve and has annually contributed choice and rare plants.

FIRE CHIEFS MEET AT EDGELY; HEAR OF NEW LEGISLATION

Bucks Co. Group Listens To Address by President of "Box 1776," Phila.

TO RECEIVE MONEYS

New Law Will Give Firemen Funds Received Under Levy

EDGELY, July 20—Edgely Fire Co. served as host on Monday evening to those affiliated with Bucks County Fire Chiefs Association. The group was assembled in Edgely Fire Company station, and presiding was Robert O'Neill, Cornwells Heights, president of the county group.

Albert H. Reddies, who is the president of Box 1776, Philadelphia, was the speaker. He spoke of superiority of equipment in the volunteer fire companies, especially as compared to that of large city companies. He stated that the fire loss has been cut down during the past several years due to quick action and fine equipment of the volunteers.

The speaker urged that fire companies have two-way radio installed on all fire apparatus. "Such a step would save time and lives," he commented. He informed that the Federal Radio Commission has assigned a number of channels to fire departments.

In speaking of need for an expanded program of fire prevention he informed that "industrial and mercantile inspections are carried out, but dwelling inspections are neglected."

Forty men were present to participate in a general discussion of various fires in Bucks County. Announcement was made to the group of the passage recently of a law whereby fire tax funds received in any township will be distributed equally among fire companies in the township.

Outlines Problems Met In Veterans' Training

ANDALUSIA, July 20—Bensalem Rotary Club was given an outline of the problems and attempts at correction which are met in veterans training, when members met in King hall last evening. John Virdin, instructor in advertising and selling at Bok Vocational School, Philadelphia, was the speaker.

One problem for which the cure is self-evident was the fact that the veteran may start instruction at any time during the term. Another is the adverse picture painted by organizations and publications which pre-supposes every veteran as having a "condition." This has a tendency to create a certain feeling of helplessness and a desire to dodge anything which might aggravate the "condition" in many instances. Classified as aggravating in the veteran's mind seems to be, namely, the process of thinking or assuming responsibility. This problem is a tough one according to Mr. Virdin, and necessitates a psychological approach. Teach self-discipline is essential, he pointed out.

A great help in training the veteran can be had by every business man able to give apprentice training or part-time employment, it was emphasized.

Visitors of the evening included: Albert Carr, Beverly, N. J.; Albert Schaffel, New Brunswick, N. J.; D. Kusina, Bristol; and Albert Tobbi, Treves. Presiding officer was William States.

Never before do so many owe so much to those little Want Ads.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Democratic victory over totalitarian dictatorship is inevitable without war because of the greater appeal of our faith, President Truman declared yesterday in addressing the Shriners' convention. "The world is tired of political fanaticism," he said. "It is weary of lies, propaganda and hysteria created by dictatorships. It is disgusted by the practice of torture and political assassination. It is sick of the kind of political allegiance which is inspired solely by fear. Men want to live together in peace and 'feel themselves united in brotherly love.' The United States generously helps others, the President said, because 'we think of the people of other countries as human beings, not as pawns in the game of power politics.'"

On the question of aid to others, Director Dodds of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization said a world survey had shown him that President Truman's "point four" could bring great development to backward areas with "just a little money."

Senate Republicans opposed to the North Atlantic treaty were reported rallying to a resolution Senator Wherry plans to introduce disavowing any obligation to give arms aid to other signatories. Henry L. Stimson appealed to the Republicans for ratification not "befogged by reservations seeming to proceed from fear." Russia, in a note, accused Italy of having broken her treaty by joining the North Atlantic pact.

A National Planning Association committee urged repeal of wartime excess profits taxes and a "modest increase" in income tax exemptions to spur buying and production.

The Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy will discuss with State Department, military and atomic energy officials today Britain's desire for the "know how" on atomic bomb production. A majority of the committee was reported opposed to making the information available. Much of this data is known to British scientists, it was said.

Striking British dockers were ordered back to work today under penalty of losing wage and other benefits.

The Vatican's decree excommunicating willing Communists has seriously weakened that party in Soviet areas of Germany. The Communists made a surprise plea for free elections in Berlin. United States and British officials were considering reducing occupation costs to the Germans.

Greece charged that the Cominform, to offset Yugoslavia's defection, had increased aid from Albania and Bulgaria to the Greek guerrillas.

RECOVERS HER POCKETBOOK After It Went Down Sewer

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—Peggy Lunny thinks the Doylestown sewer system is about as efficient as anything there is in her home city of Newark, N. J.

She was visiting the William Hughes here several days ago, and during a heavy rain storm, lost her pocketbook in a gutter at the corner of South Clinton and Ashland streets, as she was stepping into her automobile.

The pocketbook, containing a sizeable sum of money, and valuable papers, was swept down a storm sewer underground.

Miss Lunny appealed to the sewer department, and was guided to a catch basin four blocks away. By the time she got there, the pocketbook had caught on a broken tree limb, where the lucky Miss recovered it, with contents intact, although a bit damp.

TO USE TAG FUNDS FOR A PARKING LOT

"Langhorne Day" Set For July 23rd; Langhorne Ass'n Is Sponsor

P L A N RE-SURFACING

LANGHORNE, July 20—Langhorne is being "tagged" for benefit of a civic improvement, with concentrated effort taking place on sale of tags for improvement of the borough parking lot on Saturday next. Saturday is to be known as "Langhorne Day" with the Langhorne Association as sponsor of the idea. On the 23rd, Boy Scouts and some local girls will sell tags about the borough.

The borough's parking lot is located at the rear of the town hall, Maple avenue, and association members estimate there is space on the 160x80 foot lot for 40 automobiles.

"The borough already has a parking lot, and all that it needs is re-surfacing," stated Dr. Alvah Cooley, president of Langhorne Association, in speaking of the project. The object is to have residents make a donation of money in return for a tag, all money received to go into the re-surfacing fund.

President Says U. S. Action Saved World

Chicago—President Truman declared today that this nation and the world might have been destroyed if the United States had failed to assume the responsibility of saving the Western European democracies. Mr. Truman, making a surprising speech before shrine officials in Chicago, also bluntly accused Soviet Russia of having broken all international agreements it has made since that government came into power in 1917.

Ammonia Tank Explodes in Hotel Occupied by Truman

Chicago—A gauge on a 55-gallon ammonia tank exploded today at Chicago's Stevens Hotel where President Truman was an overnight guest, but no one was injured and the Presidential party not disturbed. The poisonous fumes rose from the basement to the third floor in the west side of the hotel and routed 31 bakers and maintenance workers in that area.

SHOWDOWN HERE

Members of the United States Senate now have a chance to show that they meant it when they called for economy in government. Inasmuch as a majority has spoken informally to that effect, all that is now necessary to obtain the desired result is for the Senators to vote as they talk.

The showdown is here on the appropriation bills, and it would be a pleasant surprise if fears that expenses will not be reduced proved to be unduly cynical. If it were a case of directing the President to cut appropriations—which has been suggested as a possible course—most Senators would vote for the resolution.

But when it is a matter of going individually on record in support of smaller funds for specific projects or departments, members of the Senate become exceedingly wary. They refuse to take the responsibility of offending some of their constituents.

Still and all, the need for economy exists in greater degree today than at any time during the past 10 years. The President's own mid-year message has pointed up this fact. But the policy which Mr. Truman advocates is one of deficit financing. Quite as discouraging as this proposal is his recommendation for expensive adventures in new social and economic fields.

When prudence dictates savings, the President suggests living still further beyond the government's means.

BEEF ABOUT BEEF

Uruguay has a beef against the American Army. The beef, in fact, was raised on the hoof on the rolling grassy plains of Uruguay. Sensitive Uruguayans are convinced that the Army undertook to buy their beef and then went back on its word and made the purchase from their top-heavy and none too friendly neighbor, Argentina.

It was all a misunderstanding, apparently. The Army opened bids last month on an order for $5,000,000 worth of beef for its overseas troops. A Uruguayan firm was the low bidder. But the bid was on a lower quality of beef than the Army wanted, and the Army called for new bids on high quality beef. This time an Argentine firm was low and it got the contract.

There seems to have been some bungling in a situation which resulted in cancellation of one set of bids and calling for a second set after the results of the first had been announced. Small Latin countries like Uruguay are likely to be touchy toward slights from North Americans. And the Army seems to have done little to smooth matters over.

It is understandable that Army officers should feel that public relations are unimportant. An army has ways of influencing people without bothering to make friends. But guns are at best a poor substitute for good will, and it should be possible to drive this point home, even through the high brass.

at the baseball game heard the useless argument among players and protesting roars from some spectators as the result of a decision made by the umpire. "It reminds me," said Hajala, "of the case of Utell-em, who, in ancient Arabia, acted as Kadi, or magistrate, among individuals in various arguments. After listening to both sides, he would render a decision which, though fair, always brought protest from the contestants not favored by the judgment. Then would the Kadi say, 'Behold, though I have weighed both arguments wisely, I may have erred, since I am not Allah. Yet were there no judges like myself, your disagreement might never find solution and presently your respective tribes might be at each other's throats. You must agree that the opinion of a fair judge is to be preferred.'"

"Some day," continued Hajala, "men may progress to the point where they may agree on most things of themselves. Meanwhile we should be glad to have courts—or umpires—so that the game may go on."

PULCHRITUDE.

It is hoped that you will not need this advice; but if you are bitten by a venomous snake, here is the course to follow:

Send for a physician at once. Apply tourniquet immediately about 2 inches above the bite. Loosen at intervals to prevent gangrene. Make cross-cut incisions with sharp knife or razor blade, at the bite and on the edges of the swelling. Apply suction at each cross-cut incision for 15 minutes of every hour. Inject antivenin as soon as possible around and above the bite. Then release the tourniquet and continue suction with empty antivenin syringe until symptoms subside.

An old-timer, noting the sane Fourth of July doll parade and distribution of ice-cream cones, remarked, "Those poor kids never will know the fun we had—and the casualties—thank Heaven."

Now women everywhere, at man's behest,
Leave homes with modern aids and comforts blest
To go to summer shacks of rustic type.

At inconveniences they do not gripe
The while they wrudge through rugged added chores
So hubby may enjoy "the great outdoors."

Ah, women—once again your patience wins
My accolade to you as heroines!

Don't continue to drive when fatigued or drowsy. Stop and rest—or that trip never may be completed.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.
(Famous make-up advisor to the screen stars now writing for INS).

HOLLYWOOD, — (INS) — If, for some mysterious reason, you wish to go out and purchase a truly inferior perfume, you would find this procedure much more difficult today than you would have some 25 or 30 years ago. Most of the fragrances offered today are quality ones. Some are better than others, but still, there are few really inferior ones being offered.

This is largely because the glamour-seeking woman of today is much wiser in her purchasing of all grooming materials, including perfume, than she generally was some decades ago. She is aware, among other things, that a too-cheap-in-price perfume is in nearly every instance actually not an economical purchase. The fragrance of such a perfume does not offer a sound return for the financial investment, either in the quality of the fragrance supplied, or the lasting power of this fragrance.

The result of all this is that women now don't have to be quite so on the alert as they used to against the possibility of investing unwisely in an unworthy scent. Their own discernment has, down through the years, largely taken care of this problem.

However, it can still be noted that there even now remain at least a few flaws in the fragrance scene. A great many women are not at all appreciative of the fact that one fragrance will not serve as well for a wide variety of times, places, and costumes as an assortment of perfumes can, with each of these de-

Eye Make-Up Is Flattering

To put the final touch on your eye make-up, you might like to try a colorless lash cream. Apply it with a small brush or with your fingers.

ONE way for a girl to change herself from the quiet little mouse type into a more vivid personality is to touch her eyelids with flattering pigment. This form of artifice will do something to her spirits, give her self confidence. The miracle has happened to others. She will have to be deft and clever, find out the ways and means but, once all this is accomplished, she will feel that she has flair.

No woman is afraid to lay on the counterfite blush or ply the lipstick, no matter how blazing the colors may be, but the average woman is scared stiff of eye shadows. She thinks they may be too theatrical or she doesn't really need them or they take too much time to apply. If she will go to a beauty shop, have a fifteen minute session with a facial operator, she may be delighted with the reflection in the mirror.

Difficult to Manage

In yore years, shadows were difficult to manage. They came in cake form, wouldn't friction into the flesh evenly, often fell from the lids in a light powder form. Not so these days. Cosmetic chemists have produced items that sweep on easily and stay put. It is like applying a light cream. The only way you can go wrong is to use too much or cover too large an area.

If lid coloring is used discreetly it will bring out the color of the iris, will help to prominent eyes to recede, will give bespectacled eyes a needed touch of glamour. Start at the line of the eyelashes and blend in delicately over the fullness of the lid. There should be but the faintest film. It should not extend beyond the far end of the eyebrow, must grow paler as it ascends.

Blue is the favorite for blonds and brunettes, though one can have bronze, pale green, grey-blue, gray brown or even a delicate mauve.

The skin should be conditioned for shadows by the use of a light cream. Then the eyes will look dewy.

To put the final touch on your eye make-up, use a colorless lash cream. Apply it with a small brush or with the fingers.

and slacks can be worn change-about with a bright sweater.

Dresses of silk or rayon sheer or nylon take up little room in a suitcase and are ready for dress up occasions. Nylon is being made up into a greater variety of garments than ever before, not only hose, underwear, and sleeping garments, but blouses, dresses, gloves. These simplify the laundering problems.

Feminine travelers should eliminate heavy large cosmetic containers. Cosmetics in small packages and plastic containers for damp wash cloths and for extra bobby and hair pins are suggested.

Careful packing means the vacationist can find everything easily. Pack heavy articles like toilet cases, traveling iron, shoes in the bottom of the suitcase. In a suitcase which is large enough to hold extra dresses or a suit, put these garments next, and then put the sleeping garments on top. If the case is not unpacked each night it is easy to reach the toilet case and the sleeping garments. The vacationist who wants to travel light won't carry extra hats and she'll plan to make one set of accessories do for all of her costumes.

Here and There Bucks County Towns

Officer Russell Ulmer was driving the police car, and the other was operated by Mrs. Norman Ruth, of Perkaskie, who had her vehicle parked diagonally at the east curb of Seventh street.

A large produce truck stopped in the north-bound lane of traffic on Seventh street to unload merchandise, and Mrs. Ruth's view on South Seventh street was obstructed.

Employing portable scales, the latest development in curbing overloaded trucks from traveling the highways, troopers of the Bethlehem and Quakertown barracks of the State Police halted 23 drivers on Route 309 and Route 22, the latter known as the William Penn Highway, within 48 hours.

Seventeen drivers were apprehended in the vicinity of Quakertown. Troopers Joseph Ritsick, Bethlehem, who heads the truck checking detail, and Akiba Leibergal and Stephen Davidock, Quakertown, were on duty.

The only Bucks county driver halted was George E. Armstrong, Perkaskie. The others were from various parts of the State and Ohio and Michigan.

With Patricia McClennen showing her trick horse and David Barndt offering free rides in his pony cart, the fourth annual pet show ended in a high note on the playground at Perkaskie the past week.

More than 200 children and half as many pets combined to make the show a real success. Miss McClennen trained the pony herself. The show was under the supervision of Mrs. James Hackett, Chet Dawson and Alex Christ, and was held in conjunction with the supervised play program of the school board.

From the time the dogs started the parade until the cats, rabbits, tadpoles, turtles, chickens and guinea pigs were judged, everyone had a glorious time.

The Langhorne Association was formed last November, it being a civic organization. According to members "The association is an organization working in conjunction with other groups in recognition and solution of civic problems in the community." According to officials, one of the first things the unit did was to take action to have the borough Christmas lights resurrected and hung about the streets. "They were in the basement of Langhorne bank for about nine years," said a spokesman.

Seventy men are said to be affiliated with the Langhorne Association, with meetings held on the first Wednesday of each month in Cadet Hall.

Bucks One of 10 Leading Counties, Egg Production

DOYLESTOWN, July 20—Bucks County is one of the leading 10 counties in the United States in poultry and egg production, according to Rains Lanson, poultry professor at the National Agricultural College. Mr. Lanson spoke to members of Bucks Co. Division of the P. S. P. Federation, in Segal hall.

According to the guest: "Poultry and egg production make up a $200 million dollar industry in Pennsylvania."

Mrs. Alice Peppers Dominy, Quakertown, served as chairman. Frank H. Ellis, 3rd, executive secretary of the Penna. State Poultry Federation, said: "A producer organization that will make its weight felt locally, state-wide and nationally must be developed this year in order to be effective during the coming year."

John Rosenberger, Quakertown, speaking from the hatchery point of view, said: "When the poultry farmer can produce more and better eggs and chickens at less cost he is going to be a better customer for more chicks, feed, equipment and more of everything."

E. J. Lawless, Jr., of the State Bureau of Markets, Harrisburg, outlined some of his problems in trying to supervise the poultry and egg grading and inspection work in the state. "Many government agencies and industrial organizations are educating the consuming public to expect and demand AA poultry and eggs. Many farmers and poultrymen are attempting to produce them."

Europeans Find Eldorado At Eldorado Farm

time assignment, is glad to have work to do, even though farming is far different from his chosen vocation. "In Poland it was sometimes hard for the intellectual classes to get work," he reminds. "And if you were not a specialist in some form of physical work it was harder still."

Back in 1947 Mr. Bohosiewicz spent five months on the local farm, and he could tell his wife and two sons when he returned to Poland about the home that awaited them in Bucks County, and something of life in America. In May of 1948 the entire family came to Eldorado, and last month Gregory and Paul graduated from Langhorne-Middletown high school. Gregory plans to enter Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia, in the fall possibly taking up business administration. Paul will become a student at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, studying medicine. During the summer they are helping their father with the cultivation of the 120 acres; while Mrs. Bohosiewicz finds her numerous farm-home tasks lightened considerably with modern electrical appliances. "The electric washer is my best friend," she claims. During the past week the entire family turned out to help with the oats harvest.

Mr. Litterer, a native of Poland, and Michael Kurylak find that 20 Guernsey cows, together with other farm duties, keep them busy. Litterer has been in this country one year. His wife is a native of Belgium.

"I had read much about America," commented Mr. Litterer in speaking of the country in which he now makes his home. "We are all here because of conditions which exist in our own country. Here we find freedom." This statement was similar to that made by young Gregory who reminded: "If any trouble occurs here we can call the police to aid us; in Poland if you called the police you would find yourself in more trouble than ever."

The section of Poland from which the Bohosiewicz family comes is in the southeast of that country, which is now in Russian hands. As for Mr. Kurylak, life in Europe for him was a nightmare. He died. His mother, father, sister and brother were "killed by the Communists" according to his friends on the farm. Although a Ukrainian, his home was in the same village as was that of the Bohosiewicz family, and young Michael Kurylak spent some time in a displaced persons camp in Germany.

So many things seem "bigger" here than in the section from which they came, according to Mrs. Bohosiewicz. "Thunderstorms are bigger; trees are bigger; and the people have more energy. People here were born peaceful and can live in peace. In Europe there is always war."

The two Bohosiewicz boys expressed amazement at the American school systems. "There is complete freedom of speech, and a pupil can choose what course he wishes to follow. The teachers cooperate with you, they are your friends, and not severe." In Poland, the boys say, school classes were conducted from eight until four o'clock, six days a week, with one hour for lunch, and vacation period was only two months.

Pennsylvania potato growers planted 192,000 acres this year—2,000 acres under 1948—and anticipated a harvest of 19,000 bushels.

Expect Smallest Crop Of Potatoes In 50 Years

HARRISBURG, July 29 (INS)—

Pennsylvania farmers can expect to harvest the smallest potato crop in more than 50 years unless weather conditions improve during the next two months, the State Agriculture Department said today.

Potato crop estimates totaled 13,450,000 bushels as of July 1, the lowest since 1898 when spud production totaled only 12,355,000 bushels.

June weather was blamed largely for the short 1949 crop. Hot, dry weather and parched fields held peace. In Europe there is always war."

The two Bohosiewicz boys expressed amazement at the American school systems. "There is complete freedom of speech, and a pupil can choose what course he wishes to follow. Women Study Development Of Memorial Planting

WASHINGTON CROSSING, July 20.—Among the recent guests of the Bowman's Hill Wild Flower Preserve in Washington Crossing Park were Mrs. Charles Platt of Chestnut Hill; Mrs. Edward M. Cheston of "Hayfield," Ambler; and Mrs. William R. Mercer of Doylestown.

As representatives of the Garden Club of America, a charter club of the Garden Club of America, they studied the further development of their memorial planting, which was one of the earliest contributions made to the wild flower preserve.

Meeting with the group were members of the preserve committee, a representative of the park commission, and the park botanist and naturalist.

Sixteen varieties of the flex opaca (American Holly tree) were recently donated to the Wild Flower Preserve in Washington Crossing Park. These unusual specimen seedlings were the gift of Miss Elizabeth C. White of Whitesboro, N. J., internationally known for her work in perfecting the "true-blue" blueberry, the propagation of the rare Franklinia tree, and also the box huckleberry.

The plants which were received by the park bear such names as Betsy, Osa, St. Mary, Sallie, Sarah, Della, and of the "gentlemen" hollies—John Higgins, Charles, Ishai, and "Slim Jim."

At least four of these distinguished arrivals will be planted on the Bluebell Trail, which recently was sponsored by the Doylestown Nature Club.

Miss White has long been an ardent supporter of the purposes and program of the Bowman's Hill Wild Flower Preserve and has annually contributed choice and rare plants.

Our heavenly Father, we would commend ourselves to Thy gracious care. We are mindful and grateful to Thee for all Thy merciful benefits towards us; and we beseech Thee that our hearts and minds may now be brought into closer fellowship with Thee, and that Thou wouldst draw very near to each heart. Sift to each one of us a blessing as Thou seest there may be need. Comfort the sorrowing; enlighten the perplexed; strengthen the weak; guide and direct when our footsteps grow weary; and grant us the forgiveness of our sins and the acceptance of our service, in Jesus' name. Amen.

• The Toridheet Rotary Burner creates a quiet, slow-burning flame, blue at base with orange tips. It meets the heating surface low down, at the grate line, and is applied directly to the walls . . . the fastest and most economical method of heating. Its low velocity and natural draft keeps the heat in constant contact with the heating surfaces to utilize every unit of heat and attain an exceptionally high efficiency.
